HONEYWELL INTRODUCES FF-SG SERIES AM2-L SAFETY LIGHT CURTAINS

Enhanced Features Update This Competitively Priced Replacement for FF-SG Series AM2

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 12, 2007 – Honeywell (NYSE: HON) today introduced its FF-SG Series AM2-L Safety Light Curtains, a replacement for the existing FF-SG Series AM2 Safety Light Curtains. The FF-SG AM2-L offers enhanced features in a competitively-priced replacement product with enhanced quality.

The new FF-SG Series AM2-L uses the recently introduced FF-ST Safety Light Curtain foundation with the M12/8 pole male receptacles previously mounted on the FF-SG, providing a readily-available replacement product. The AM2-L's hardware connectors are mounted on the FF-ST platform, providing enhanced functionality. New platform features include a longer scanning range, greater cable length, more mounting possibilities and fewer issues related to power supply. The result is a competitively-priced replacement product with enhanced quality.

Potential applications include automotive plant floor such as engine lines, welding, assembly, stamping and paint shops; material handling such as conveyors, lifts/hoists and stacking machines; packaging equipment; printing machinery and paper guillotines; machine tool such as metal-forming/milling/drilling, pressing/molding/thermoforming and assembly equipment.
